1. The first of these is the fact that the theology of the Bible is not a static system of dogmas, but a living, growing tradition which has been shaped by the experience of the people of God. It is this living tradition which has been expressed in the various forms of theology which have been developed throughout the history of the Church.
The second fact is that the theology of the Bible is not a mere collection of doctrines, but a coherent system of thought which is based on the revelation of God in the Bible. It is this coherent system which has been developed by the Church throughout the history of the world.
